Welcome

Last year Galway International Arts Festival returned to full size after the pandemic years of reduced programmes. It was fantastic to welcome everyone back once again to the Festival, celebrating great art once more, together.

This year we continue that celebration on an even larger scale. It is our privilege to bring you this programme which contains our biggest ever theatre, circus and dance programme, along with a great music line-up, visual arts, comedy, spectacle and discussion.

While challenging times remain, we feel we must take the opportunity to celebrate the wonderful. Take the time to experience the best of the fantastic creativity that exists and just enjoy it.

As always we wish to thank all our artists, funders, sponsors, donors and friends who continue to be our partners, and without whom the Festival would not be possible.

Most of all we hope you can join us in July for what we hope will be a wonderful two weeks.

Druid O'Casey

Sean O'Casey's Dublin Trilogy

The Plough and the Stars | The Shadow of a Gunman | Juno and the Paycock

directed by Garry Hynes

One of the greatest Irish stories ever told.

A century ago, Ireland was reborn in the fires of rebellion and war. The playwright Sean O'Casey bore witness to these seismic events and dramatised them as the Dublin Trilogy, three great works of Irish theatre, full of history, humanity and humour.

100 years later, Druid will weave O'Casey's three plays into an epic theatrical event of conflict, national identity and the human toll of war, Druid O'Casey.

Audiences will experience O'Casey's work as never before: directed by Tony Award winner Garry Hynes, a company of 18 actors will perform the three plays in one day, drawing parallels between an Irish past and an international present. A limited number of individual performances of the three plays in the trilogy will also take place.

Druid O'Casey begins with The Plough and the Stars, the story of newlyweds Jack and Nora Clitheroe living in a city on the brink of rebellion in 1916.

In The Shadow of a Gunman, Donal Davoren, Seumas Shields and Minnie Powell find themselves tragically tangled up in the Irish War of Independence.

The saga ends with Juno and the Paycock and the Boyle family who see their fortunes dashed amidst the upheaval of the Irish Civil War.

Renowned for their previous play cycles [DruidSynge, DruidMurphy and DruidShakespeare], Druid O'Casey will be the most ambitious production in Druid's history.

'Gravity defied in spectacular fashion'

SYDNEY MORNING HERALD

'Astounding'

THE TIMES

Astonishing acrobatics combine with a 30 strong all female choir in this jaw-dropping, pulsating performance.

This hugely ambitious and monumental work of scale, which is the biggest indoor show ever presented by GIAF, sees a shimmering mass of sixty acrobats and choir members unite and divide, becoming a spectacular being of muscle, bone and voice as a mountain of bodies crumbles into an ocean of sound. It's raw, it's real, it sings, it sweats, it pulsates.

Towering human structures move with precision through a pulsing web of noise and light. Seemingly impossible levels of cooperation and feats of shared humanity, repeat, stretch, blossom and decay. Witness an intricate, organic synchronicity of human movement and sound — all to the beat of your own pounding pulse.

The Pulse will take place in the spectacular new Festival Theatre, at the Kingfisher at the University of Galway. Specifically built for this phenomenal production, it is the biggest indoor temporary venue the Festival has ever created.

'a genuine and bracing original ... a whiskey shot of a play'

THE NEW YORK TIMES

'a play unlike any other I have seen ... an uncomfortable, unforgettable tour-de-force'

DAILY TELEGRAPH

I give in to the words. I let go. Go.

Father and Daughter are bound, inextricably, to each other. And the walls are closing in.

He talks frantically about his extraordinary past in furniture sales; she talks no less compulsively about anything at all, to fill the terrible silence in her head.

Enda Walsh's savagely funny play — a sensation in Dublin, London and New York — gets a major revival.

Colm Meaney — whose recent stage performances include Cat on a Hot Tin Roof in the West End and The Iceman Cometh on Broadway — returns to the Irish stage for the first time in 40 years, to play the once-flamboyant furniture salesman. Brenda Meaney plays his daughter, confined to a small bed.

What would happen if the torrent of words — just stopped?

Directed by Marc Atkinson Borrull, the stellar creative team also includes Jamie Vartan [set and costume], Sinéad McKenna [lighting] and Sinéad Diskin [sound].

Life & Times of Michael K is a hugely ambitious theatrical staging of Nobel Prize-winning author J.M. Coetzee's novel which combines puppetry, performance, film and evocative music bringing together some of South Africa's most revered, multi-award-winning artists in this epic production, adapted and directed by Lara Foot.

Coetzee's Booker Prize-winning novel tells the hauntingly beautiful story of Michael K, a simple man who embarks on a journey through South Africa, a country ravaged by civil war, to return his mother to die on the farm where she was born. During this journey, he finds strength in his own humanity, his profound connection to the earth and his unique path which, as it unfolds, reveals to him his reason for living.

The Tony Award-winning Handspring Puppet Company are well known for creating the spectacular puppets in the West End and Broadway productions of Warhorse and, more recently Little Amal, the puppet refugee who has walked across Europe.

The production recently won the South African Fleur du Cap Best Production Award.

A huge hit at Dublin Theatre Festival last year, How To Be A Dancer In Seventy-Two Thousand Easy Lessons is a dance down a rabbit hole of nationality, identity, racism, body-image, culture, death, love, ancestor worship, veneration, innocence and experience, sexuality and shame, defiance, humiliation and awakening. This is a powerful coming of age work which is both playful and provocative.

From an Ireland in the 1970s to the present day, How To Be A Dancer In Seventy-Two Thousand Easy Lessons blurs the boundaries between what is lived and what is imagined, between history and destiny, between fact and fiction.

Written and choreographed by Michael Keegan-Dolan who returned to the stage for the first time in over twenty years for this production, alongside dancer and life-time collaborator Rachel Poirier.

Volcano

written and directed by Luke Murphy

'Like an episode of Black Mirror on steroids ... outstanding ...'

THE IRISH TIMES

'Superbly inventive ... exhilarating.'

THE GUARDIAN

Volcano is part theatre, part mini-series and part dance all wrapped in the tapestry of an unfolding sci-fi thriller.

Acclaimed director and choreographer Luke Murphy blurs the lines between theatre, dance and psychological sci-fi thriller in a live performance made for the Netflix era. Taking audiences on a unique and voyeuristic journey Volcano explores the all too familiar struggles of power, time and trust, across four, forty-five minute episodes. Audiences can tailor their own viewing journey, watching individual episodes on consecutive days or the four in one day omnibus version.

Volcano which premiered at Galway International Arts Festival in 2021 for an audience of just eight people returns to GIAF 2023 for a larger audience at the Mick Lally Theatre. Volcano was the winner of four Irish Times Theatre Awards 2021/22 for Best Production, Best Movement, Best Set and Best Lighting Design.

featuring the voice of Zara Devlin

'You can't hear it what with the noise and the horrible effort of all those bodies looking for 'the grab'. But love's still there in the dark somewhere. Close my eyes and I can hear it saying my name.'

It's 1972 and a young woman works the cloakroom in her local dancehall. Her life's long search for real love is about to come to an end.

Cloakroom is the tenth in a series of immersive theatre installations by Enda Walsh following on from Room 303, A Girl's Bedroom, Kitchen, Bathroom, Office 33A, Waiting Room, Changing Room, Bedsit and Middle Bedroom, collectively known as Rooms which he has made with Paul Fahy for Galway International Arts Festival. Rooms has toured to Washington and New York, and most recently to the Barbican London.

Enda Walsh's recent work includes Medicine; the musical Sing Street; the stage adaptation of Max Porter's book Grief is the Thing with Feathers; the musical Lazarus, written with David Bowie; The Same; and The First Child an opera with Irish composer Donnacha Dennehy. His screen adaptation of Claire Keegan's Small Things Like These starring Cillian Murphy recently completed filming. He won a Tony Award for writing the book for the musical Once.

A child creates a list of things worth living for in an attempt to raise the spirits of their chronically depressed mother.

You're six years old. Mum's in hospital. Dad says she's 'done something stupid'. She finds it hard to be happy. So you start to make a list of everything that's brilliant about the world. Everything that's worth living for. 1. Ice-cream. 2. Kung Fu movies. 3. Burning things. 4. Laughing so hard you shoot milk out your nose. 5. Rollercoasters. 6. Me. You leave it on her pillow. You know she's read it because she's corrected your spelling. Soon the list will take on a life of its own.

Clare Barrett stars in this new production of Duncan MacMillan's worldwide smash hit play. A play about depression and the lengths we go to for those we love. Jump in and be part of the creative experience as the audience help tell this poignant and hilarious story.

Not A Word invites you to sit with a silent man on another unexceptional evening. A day's labouring done, he plays an old tune and remembers. Brú Theatre returns to the Festival with a new piece of physical theatre merging mask, music and movement in a celebration of those who took the boat — worked hard, faltered and slowly faded from memory.

Performed by Raymond Keane, with live electronic and traditional music from Ultan O'Brien, Not A Word offers a moving portrait of one emigrant that echoes many people's stories today. This ode to a self-exiled labourer, making his way in this small space between places, is directed by James Riordan with mask design by Orla Clogher.

The Saw Doctors last performed at the Festival in 2004 in a double-bill with The Undertones at the Warwick Hotel. Loved and revered by their loyal fans, The Saw Doctors continue with a resilience and an effervescent energy.

The Saw Doctors were discovered by Mike Scott of The Waterboys on a stormy Tuesday night in Galway in the 1980s, plying their trade with more gumption than virtuosity in the back room of The Quays Bar. Scott offered them the support slot on The Waterboys' Irish Tour to launch the Fisherman's Blues album in 1988 and they went on to support The Waterboys on their six-week tour of Great Britain in Spring 1989.

The Saw Doctors found success both in Ireland and internationally with chart-topping hits including N17 and I Useta Lover.

This June, the band takes to the Glastonbury Festival's acoustic stage. Their live performances are legendary and this gig at the Heineken® Big Top sees the band return to the Festival stage for the first time in almost 20 years.

Having played in clubs and festivals in the US, China, Australia, Japan, and throughout Europe, KETTAMA returns to Galway for his first hometown gig since 2019.

Galway-born producer KETTAMA burst onto the house and electro scene in recent years, with the release of his 2018 EP Bucklyn Bridge, which featured the track B O D Y giving him a significant break. Other tracks by KETTAMA include Kilt, Eastside Avenue, Temperature Rising and The Way You Feel. He released an EP titled G-TOWN 001 on his own label, G-TOWN RECORDS, which he launched alongside his collaborator Shampain. Other EPs include Close Your Eyes and his latest 2023 release, G-TOWN 004.

KETTAMA will be joined by special guest Shampain.

Alabama 3 are a British group founded in Brixton, London in 1995. They are best known for their track Woke Up This Morning, which was used for the opening credits of the TV series The Sopranos. Their sound fuses electronic pop with elements of country and blues styles.

Stomptown Brass has emerged as one of the most unique acts in Ireland in recent times. Blending the sounds of funk and blues with a raucous cacophony of powerful driving rhythms, Stomptown Brass make the most of their impressive line-up: two drummers, two trombones, two trumpets, one saxophone and one big dirty tuba. What sets them apart is the originality of their sound and the unmistakable energy of brass music.

The Coronas

'An Irish phenomenon.'
THE IRISH INDEPENDENT

The Coronas, one of Ireland's most popular live acts, returns to the Heineken® Big Top this July for a joyous evening of their world-famous hits. This hugely-popular band will treat the audience to hits such as Someone Else's Hands, Closer to You, San Diego Song and Give Me a Minute.

The Coronas' seventh album, Time Stopped, was released in October and went straight to No. 1 on the Irish album charts, making them the first and only Irish band in history to have a third consecutive No. 1 album, an amazing feat for the Dublin trio.

Playing to full houses on their recent world tour, The Coronas return to Galway for what's sure to be a show-stopping Festival experience.

Les SalAmandas

'A seriously promising new force in Irish music.'

HOT PRESS

Based in the West Cork village of Ballydehob, Les SalAmandas are Julie O'Sullivan and Colyne Laverriere. The duo teamed up a few years ago to write songs with little else in mind other than the enjoyment of it, and crowdfunded their debut album There's a Sea Between Us which was released last February.

With little or no musical experience behind them, initially, their music is refreshingly unmarked by obvious influences. With touches of folk, pop and Americana shining through these instantly engaging melodies and high quality harmonies, Les SalAmandas are ready to take on the world.

Resurgam

The English Cornett and Sackbut Ensemble

Monteverdi's 1610 Vespers

Monteverdi's 1610 Vespers is a masterpiece of the early Baroque period on a dizzyingly opulent scale.

Monteverdi's setting of the Vespers unites the grandest combination of voices and instruments with the most intimate solo songs. Resurgam, The English Cornett and Sackbut Ensemble form the core of a richly-varied ensemble that includes consorts of violins, recorders, the brilliant cornetti, and the burnished sonorities of sackbuts — all underpinned by a lavish continuo section of chamber organ, violone, harp and theorbo.

For this performance the virtuosic voices of Resurgam are joined by local choirs Cois Cladaigh and Collegium, and a specially selected ensemble of children's voices. Galway's 1610 Vespers will be one to remember.

David Mach

The Oligarch's Nightmare

David Mach is one of the UK's most successful, prolific and respected artists, best known for his dynamic and large-scale collage, and his imposing and provocative public art, sculpture and installations constructed from mass-produced materials including coat hangers, car tyres, newspapers and magazines.

Galway International Arts Festival has commissioned the Turner Prize-nominated artist to create a new site-specific installation The Oligarch's Nightmare, a maquette of which is pictured here.

Growing up in Fife, this miner's son was immersed in the heavy construction that surrounded him from colliery shafts to oil rigs and steel works to dockyards, set against the beauty of the Scottish coastline and countryside. This has had a huge influence on his work.

Mach's previous sensational GIAF exhibitions — 2012's Precious Light which featured the enormous crucifixion sculpture Golgotha, made from steel and wire coat hangers, and 2018's Rock 'n' Roll which saw Mach place a yacht, car and a caravan with multiple other objects and debris within a monumental quantity of painstakingly positioned newspapers — enjoyed record-breaking audiences.

A number of additional maquettes, sculptures and collages will also be exhibited.

Diana Copperwhite

Onomatopoeia

Diana Copperwhite makes big bold compelling oil paintings which are both complex and energetic.

She creates an exquisite tension between abstraction and figuration or representation of any kind. Vibrating spectral bands have become a kind of a trademark in Copperwhite's recent large paintings, recalling that as she grew up, chemistry and physics were common topics at home.

Copperwhite lives and works in Dublin and New York. Recent solo exhibitions include Reflections on a Darker Mirror in New York in 2022, and Vanishing Apertures at the Kevin Kavanagh Gallery, Dublin in 2021.

Whistling in the Dark

WHERE & WHEN
Galway Arts Centre,
Dominick Street
17-29 July
10am-5pm
Closed Sundays
Free

Whistling in the Dark is a major new exhibition of photography, collage, film, print and sound work by artist Ruby Wallis.

Wallis is a visual artist who works primarily with lens-based media; she lectures at The Burren College of Art. Her practice is driven by a desire to transform the relationship we have to our own bodies, gender, safety and public space. For Wallis, walking at night with a camera is an active embodiment and mode of subversion: a play between the real-vs-imagined, and a relation to the non-human and botanical world.

Whistling in the Dark, shows a series of photographs, sound and video installations drawn from a collaborative project with writer Philina Sun, A Woman Walks Alone at Night, with a Camera, and new sound work creative in collaboration with musician and composer Mike Smalle. These works are shown alongside recent works from Swarming which draw on photography, its history and material forms. Using installation of collage, cyanotype and analogue prints, the artist responds to the aspects of the botanical world she finds within the walls of the Georgian architecture of Galway Arts Centre, the former residence of Lady Gregory.

Curated by Megs Morley.

Lorraine Tuck

Unusual Gestures

Unusual Gestures is an intensely moving and emotionally powerful photographic exhibition. Lorraine Tuck has turned the lens to her own experiences to tell the story of a family living with autism spectrum disorder [ASD], and intellectual disability.

Tuck is the mother of four children, two boys and two girls. The boys have autism spectrum disorder, which in the case of the youngest, is coupled with severe intellectual disability. Unusual Gestures provides insights into the far-reaching implications that neurodiversity and disability present for families.

A further series of works in the exhibition focuses on the artist's uncle Owen who has Down's Syndrome and is gender fluid. At times, Owen chooses to live as a woman called 'Pink'. Owen/Pink has collaborated with Tuck to produce a series of portraits exploring their fluid gender identity with joyful and refreshing honesty.

At its heart, this exhibition is about love more than autism or disability. Transcending a documentary or issue-based record, Tuck's work is a beautiful and clear-eyed call for acceptance and inclusion.

What Exactly is Irish Neutrality?

Diarmaid Ferriter, Conor Gallagher, Catherine Connolly and Fintan O'Toole in conversation with Katie Hannon

Irish neutrality has become a topic for discussion since Russia invaded Ukraine in 2022. How did we become neutral? In what way are we neutral? Does neutrality need legislative or constitutional protection? Katie Hannon of RTÉ will moderate a discussion between Diarmaid Ferriter, Professor of Modern Irish History at UCD, Conor Gallagher, Crime and Security Correspondent with The Irish Times and author of a new book on neutrality, Catherine Connolly T.D. and Fintan O'Toole author of We Don't Know Ourselves.

What did we learn from the Decade of Centenaries?

Diarmaid Ferriter, Anne Dolan and Gearoid O'Tuathaigh in conversation

We have come to the end of a serious interrogation of the years of our so-called revolutionary period. How did we do? Are we wiser than when we started? Were sacred cows demoted and unheard voices restored? Does our new knowledge enrich our understanding of the present?

Diarmaid Ferriter, Professor of Modern History at UCD, Anne Dolan, Associate Professor of Modern Irish History at TCD, and Gearoid O'Tuathaigh, Professor Emeritus of History at University of Galway, will discuss.

In the Fires of Rebellion and War

Garry Hynes
in conversation with Fintan O'Toole

A century ago, Ireland was reborn in the fires of rebellion and war. The playwright Sean O'Casey bore witness to these seismic events and dramatised them as the Dublin Trilogy, three great works of Irish theatre, full of history, humanity and humour — The Plough and the Stars, The Shadow of a Gunman and Juno and the Paycock. 100 years later, Garry Hynes has woven O'Casey's three plays into an epic Druid theatrical event of conflict, national identity and the human toll of war. To discuss these plays and incredible production Garry is joined in conversation by journalist and author Fintan O'Toole.

Housing and Creativity

Bridget Mae Power, Emmet Kirwan and Betsy Cornwell
in conversation with Rory Hearne

How is the housing shortage affecting artists? Is lack of housing damaging creativity and forcing artists to leave the country? Does having to constantly move disrupt their activities?

Rory Hearne, host of the podcast Reboot Republic, will interview Galway singer-songwriter Bridget Mae Power, Dublin actor Emmet Kirwan and Galway-based writer Betsy Cornwell [who has turned an old knitting factory into a refuge for single mothers] about their experiences.

Culture? What the Hell!

James Shapiro
in conversation with Chris Morash

James Shapiro, renowned Shakespeare scholar and author of 1599, will discuss his forthcoming book on the US Federal Theatre Project [1935–39], a glorious attempt to spread affordable theatre among all classes and races, which fell foul of the House Un-American Committee. [The quote above was from an unnamed congressman opposed to the supposed Communist tendencies of the Project.] Professor Shapiro will be interviewed by Chris Morash, Seamus Heaney Professor of Irish Writing at TCD, and author of A History of Irish Theatre and the newly published Dublin: A Writers' City.

Can We Get Housing Right?

Rory Hearne, Michelle Norris and Hugh Brennan
in conversation with Kathy Sheridan

Lack of affordable and social housing remains the country's biggest crisis, causing homelessness, misery, forced emigration, labour shortages and widespread child poverty. This panel will discuss remedies for the situation, with Rory Hearne, Assistant Professor of Social Policy at Maynooth University and author of Gaffs: Why no one can get a house and what we can do about it; Professor Michelle Norris, Director of the Geary Institute at UCD and an expert on social housing; and Hugh Brennan, CEO of O'Cualann Cohousing Alliance, in conversation with Kathy Sheridan, Irish Times columnist and co-author of The Builders.

"The Best Medicine for a Sick Healthcare System"

Professor Martin Curley
in conversation with Paul Cullen

Ireland is dangerously behind the rest of Europe in providing a digital health records system. Patients are being put at risk because of the persistence of paper records and lack of communications systems. Professor Martin Curley spent four years designing a new system for the HSE, only to find himself obstructed by 'bad actors' with 'no vision'. He resigned in frustration in January of this year, and had the courage to speak out about his reasons for leaving. He will be interviewed by Paul Cullen, Health Editor of The Irish Times.

Three Female Versions of Belfast

Lucy Caldwell, Wendy Erskine and Rosemary Jenkinson in conversation with Jessica Traynor

There has been a remarkable flowering of female writing in Northern Ireland over the last 20 years. Much of this writing focuses on the endlessly interesting city of Belfast. Three fine writers will discuss their versions of Belfast: Lucy Caldwell, author of These Days, the story of two sisters living through the Belfast Blitz of 1941; Wendy Erskine, chronicler of complicated lives in East Belfast in Sweet Home and Dance Move; and Rosemary Jenkinson, author of the recently-staged Silent Trade, a play about modern trafficking of women to Belfast. The event will be moderated by Jessica Traynor, acclaimed poet and Writer in Residence at University of Galway.

Elevate

Artist's Bursary

Elevate is Galway International Arts Festival's new commissioning/ bursary strand to support Irish artists working across all artforms as they create and present original, contemporary and captivating ideas to engage both live and digital audiences.

Elevate aims to foster new and innovative projects that may not otherwise be realised. The bursaries are awarded to artists to assist them in further developing their work, exploring their craft and creative practices and transforming their ideas into realised works of art.

The Elevate 2023 call for submissions closes on Friday 16 June. giaf.ie/elevate
